Interview/Personal Communication:

6.20, <http://www.apastyle.org/learn/faqs/cite-individual-email.aspx>

"Because they do not provide recoverable data, personal communications are not included in the reference list. Cite personal communications in text only. Give the initials as well as the surname of the communicator, and provide as exact a date as possible."

Example of in-text citation: T.K. Lutes (personal communication, April 18, 2001)

Reference Citation in Text:

In the text of your paper, you must document the source from which you are quoting or paraphrasing. When paraphrasing, cite the author and date of the work. For quotations, cite the author, date and page number (use paragraph numbers for electronic text). This enables the reader to locate in your reference list the source you used. Note that if a work has no author, you must use the title for the in-text citation. There are two basic methods for in-text citations:

Integrating the author's name into the sentence: Walker (2000) compared reaction times . . .

Including the author's name in a parenthetical citation: In a recent study of reaction times (Walker, 2000) . . .

For works with 2 authors:

Always list both authors' surnames every time you refer to that work. NOTE: When there are two authors and is used in the text; & is used in the parenthetical citation. Examples:

as Nightlinger and Littlewood (1993) demonstrated . . .

as has been shown (Nightlinger & Littlewood, 1989) . . .

For works with 3-5 Authors:

List all authors' surnames the first time you refer to the work. After that, list only the surname of the first author followed by et al. Examples:

First occurrence: Eley, Lichenstein, and Stevenson (1999) studied differences in . . .

Second occurrence: Eley et al. (1999) found that . . .

For works with 6 or more authors:

List only the surname of the first author by et al. (unless there are two authors with the same last name). (see example above)
